

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method and system are disclosed for providing an announcement to a calling party when the calling party calls a disconnected telephone number of a called party. Calling party information is provided for a determined disconnected telephone number of the called party. The information can include information about a telephone number of the calling party. An announcement is played to the calling party in accordance with the information. For example, one type of announcement is played if a telephone number of the calling party is included in the information. Otherwise an alternate announcement can be provided to the calling party.